The City of Toronto's Inventory of Buildings of Architectural and Historical Importance

SECOND EDITION

Published by: The Toronto Historical Board, July 1982

FOREWORD

We are sure that everyone interested in Toronto's history will welcome the publication by the Toronto Historical Board of this, the second edition of the City of Toronto's Inventory of Buildings of Architectural and Historical Importance.

Since 1977, when the first edition was published, numerous additional buildings of architectural and historical significance have been identified, and the Inventory has grown to over 1,800 properties.

Also, since publication of the first edition, an impressive amount of historical research has been carried out, and much new information on architects and building dates has been added.

The Toronto Historical Board hopes this material will be not only of use, but also an inspiration to all citizens of our City as we prepare to celebrate our architectural heritage in 1984, Toronto's 150th year.

Compiling an Inventory of Buildings is a significant step towards the preservation of our inheritance of buildings and structures. But it is, one must realize, just a starting point. On the following pages you will find an explanation of how to use the Inventory and a brief outline of how the Board employs it, in conjunction with other preservation techniques, to encourage the conservation of our architectural and historical heritage.

J. A. McGinnis,
Managing Director
Toronto Historical Board

A. Gregorovich
Chairman
Toronto Historical Board

HOW TO USE THE INVENTORY

The column headed "MUNICIPAL NUMBERS" contains the correct municipal number or numbers of each building or structure included in the Inventory. If a range of numbers applies to the building, the low and the high numbers in the range are listed first. All numbers in between are listed in sequence below the first entry. Sometimes a building is known by a "convenience number". If so, reference is made in the right-hand column to its correct municipal number.

The "WARD" column contains the number of the City Ward in which the building is located.

The heading, "REASON", refers to the reasons for including the building on the Inventory. Each entry is coded, A for Architectural, H for Historical or C for Contextual importance. For a fuller explanation of the criteria for selection of structures on the Inventory, see the Toronto Historical Board's pamphlet on Criteria, available from the Historical Preservation Section.

The "LIST" column contains the number of the list on which the individual building appeared. List 1 was adopted by City Council in June 1973. The dates upon which subsequent lists were adopted are available from the Historical Preservation Section, if required.

The column ""BUILDING TYPE", contains abbreviated references to each item's original use. The seven categories used are:

"COMM" Commercial buildings, including shops, stores, offices, warehouses and industrial buildings. Mixed-use residential and commercial buildings are included in the Commercial category.

"ED" Educational institutions, including university residences (but excluding schools associated with churches).

"FIN" Financial institutions, including banks, insurance companies and trust companies.

"PUBLIC" Public Buildings (except railway stations and certain public works listed under Miscellaneous).

"REL" Religious institutions, including churches and schools associated with them.

"RES" Residential buildings, including apartments, hotels and rectories.

"MISC" Miscellaneous buildings, including clubs, theatres, transportation facilities, memorials, bridges, gates and other structures.

"DEM" Demolished buildings.

A by-law number appears in the column headed "BY-LAW" if the item has been designated by City Council under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act, 1974.

Information with regard to a building's name, date, architect, location and later alterations appears in the right hand column.

An Invitation

If you as owner, tenant, architect, builder, developer, lawyer, government official or other citizen intend to make any change which might affect a building included on the Inventory of Buildings of Architectural and Historical Importance in the City of Toronto, please contact the Historical Preservation Section at 595-1567. The staff of the Section - Marcia Cuthbert, Head; William Greer, Architect; Margaret Baily, Historical Researcher; and Christine Lawlor, Secretary - will be pleased to discuss your proposal and/or to assist you wherever possible with your enquiry.

THE TORONTO HISTORICAL BOARD

The Toronto Historical Board is a Board of the City of Toronto, established on July 1st, 1960, by a by-law passed by Toronto City Council under the City of Toronto Act, 1958. The Board has 17 members appointed by City Council and two of them are members of Council. It employs a Managing Director and a staff of approximately 40 full-time and 40 part-time employees organized into several division.

The Board operates four museums owned by the City of Toronto: Fort York, the Marine Museum of Upper Canada, Mackenzie House, and Colborne Lodge. In 1975 it was asked by City Council to carry out the duties and functions of a Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee (LACAC) to advise on all matters relating to the Ontario Heritage Act. It is also responsible for monuments and memorials erected on city-owned lands and for advising upon the naming or re-naming of city streets and parks.

The Historical Preservation Section

The Historical Preservation Section, one of the Divisions of the Toronto Historical Board, began operations in July 1973. It now has a staff of four: a Planner, an Architect, a Historical Researcher, and a Secretary. Since 1973, the Section has augmented, researched and administered the Inventory of Buildings of Architectural and Historical Importance which has grown to over 1,800 entries and is still growing. About 170 of the properties on the Inventory have been designated by City Council under the Ontario Heritage Act.

For buildings on the Inventory, the Historical Preservation Section examines all buildings and demolition permit applications, residential demolition applications, rezoning and official plan amendment applications, development review applications, Committee of Adjustment applications, and any other proposals affecting these architecturally and historically significant structures. If necessary, staff members meet with the applicants to discuss their plans. The Section also prepares reports to the Board and to City Council on all matters relating to buildings on the Inventory or designated under the Ontario Heritage Act.

The Inventory

In 1973, City Council decided to implement a policy, included in Section 1.3 of its Official Plan, of encouraging the preservation of the City's heritage of buildings and structures of architectural and historical importance. As a first step, Council asked the Toronto Historical Board to draw up a list of architecturally and historically significant properties in the City of Toronto.

Once a building has been included on the Inventory of Buildings of Architectural and Historical Importance, the Toronto Historical Board is advised of all applications made to the City, including applications for permits to alter or demolish the building, and examines the plans submitted with the application.

The majority of applications have been found to be for alterations which would not adversely affect the building's architectural character. For these sympathetic alterations, the Board immediately indicates that it has no objection to the issuing of the permit.

Some applications, however, are for demolition and others are for alterations which would have a harmful effect on the architectural character of the building. In such cases, the Board's staff meet with the applicant to discuss possible modifications to the proposed plans. Frequently these discussions result in mutually satisfactory solutions.

A similar process is followed for rezoning, development review, Committee of Adjustment and other types of applications. If additional time for negotiation is needed, the Board may recommend that Council pass a by-law designating the property under the Ontario Heritage Act. Copies of the Act may be purchased at the Provincial Government Book Store, 880 Bay Street, Toronto (965-2054).

Designation

Since 1975, about 170 buildings in the City of Toronto have been designated by by-law under Part IV of the Ontario Heritage Act. Briefly, Part IV allows City Council to withhold alteration permits, or to delay for a limited period the issuing of demolition permits, in order to allow representatives of the Toronto Historical Board and other civic officials to meet with the owners to seek ways of retaining the designated structure.

Not all designations take place as a result of applications to alter or demolish. The Ontario Heritage Foundation has adopted a policy of requiring designation by the municipality in which a building is located as a prerequisite to the issuing of grants or loans to the owners of heritage buildings. A number of designations have resulted, therefore, from requests by the owners of such building.

The Toronto Historical Board encourages owners of buildings included on the Inventory to talk over their plans with the staff at the earliest possible stages. For it is only through co-operation between the property owners and the City that Toronto's unique heritage of buildings of architectural and historical significance may be conserved for future generations.

Other Preservation Techniques

Inclusion on the Inventory and designation under the Ontario Heritage Act by themselves will not preserve our heritage of buildings. The Toronto Historical Board must therefore employ a variety of other preservation techniques. Heritage easement agreements, the revolving fund, the heritage conservation district study, the programme to erect plaques, and the publication of preservation posters are among the techniques used by the Board and described in more detail in the Toronto Historical Board's 1980 Year Book, available for reference in the various public libraries and at the City Archives. Other techniques include the density bonus system and the transfer of density between development sites. To a great degree the preservation of the properties already included on the Inventory, or added to it in the future, depends upon the co-operation of the property owners. To them the Board would like to express its appreciation.
